I am an Information Systems graduate with a strong passion for building end-to-end digital solutions that are both intuitive and impactful. As a versatile and detail-oriented Full-Stack Developer, I specialize in transforming ideas into responsive user interfaces and robust backend systems. I work with modern front-end frameworks such as React and Vue.js, while also delivering reliable server-side development using technologies like Node.js and Express. Supported by wireframing and prototyping experience in Figma, I ensure every feature aligns with user needs and business goals. I am committed to continuous growth, cross-functional collaboration, and delivering scalable solutions that create meaningful value for users and organizations.
